TRADITIONAL USES

Resurrection Bush has been used in many African cultures to soothe and even reduce abdominal pain. The primary antioxidant (3,4,5-Tri-O-galloylquinic acid) helps to protect cells against free radicals and combat inflammation.*

Rooibos has been a part of the culture of the Cedarberg region of South Africa for hundred's perhaps thousands of years. The primary anti-oxidant in this "Red" tea (aspalathin) prevents DNA damage and inflammation. Rooibos is helpful as an antispasmodic.*

The menthol in peppermint is known to be a carminative and to have anti-spasmodic effects.*

Lemongrass and Cinnamon have chlorogenic acid, isoorientin, and swerti-ajaponin and cinnamaldehyde respectively that combat inflammation and reduce bloating as well as having great taste.*

The final ingredient, Lemon Bush, adds to the Lemon flavour and brings a refreshing cut grass element to the tea.
